Our Fish Are Clean Before You Ever Take A Knife To Them.

Quality Control from Virginia

In Virginia we like to say that our fish are clean before you ever take a knife to them. How can we make such a promise? Very simply, we have stringent inspection and quality control measures to make sure that seafood harvested from Virginia waters is clean and safe. And that our processing houses keep it that way.

State agencies for agriculture, health and marine resources are responsible for conducting continual inspections of Virginia's waters and processing plants. These stringent inspection policies mean that you can feel confident when you buy seafood from Virginia.
